THE
6 Per Ct. Gold Bonds
OF THE
TOPEKA, SALINA AND WESTERN R. R.
The syndicate of Boston and New York capitalists interested in the building of this road having paid in the full amount subscribed, the work will be pushed forward with all possible speed. The road runs from Topeka to Delhi, 181 miles, through the great wheat belt of Kansas, a territory without adequate railroad facilities, and where a large amount of business is waiting for direct communication with the markets of the South and East.
$180,000 in cash will be expended for equipment to be placed on the road during the construction of the line, and $400,000 in bonds and $500,000 in stock will remain in the treasury when the road is completed, and will be used for additional equipment and improvements.
For $650 00 and accrued interest from Jan. 1, 1883, five shares of stock, par value $100 each, and a $1,000 bond will be given, the latter bearing interest from Jan. 1, 1883. The price will be advanced from time to time as the building of the road progresses.
The proceeds from the sale of bonds will be deposited with Tower, Giddings & Co. of Boston, for account of Post, Martin & Co., New York, who are the fiscal agents for the syndicate.
Money to pay the interest on all sold bonds, up to and including July 1, 1884, will be deposited in trust in a national bank in Boston.
These bonds are worthy the attention of careful and prudent investors. Full information furnished on application to

AMERO, THE FUGITIVE.

A DISPUTE ABOUT A CELL—FOUNDATION OF THE SUSPECT'S CLAIM OF AN ALIBI.

A special despatch from Digby, N. S., to the Boston Herald, says: Your correspondent this morning visited the Court House, the sheriff's residence and jail, in company with officers local and foreign. The sheriff is an elderly man and sick, but but is able to sit up. Judge Savary called and complained that his order for the removal of Amero to the debtors' cell had not been executed. The sheriff said he did not know what authority they had for confining a person charged with a crime in a debtor's cell. The judge asked who had more authority than he. The sheriff replied that he (the sheriff) was responsible for the prisoner's custody. The judge said he would take the responsibility. The sheriff replied that the law places the responsibility on the sheriff, and added that he was too sick to undertake the removal without assistance, lest the prisoner should escape; and again, the local officers refused assistance, on the ground that the debtor's cell was not safe. The sheriff said that he could get out of the debtor's cell with the aid of a jack-knife. Amero at present is in a commodious basement cell, with two large iron-grated windows. The cell is unclean, but the uncleanliness is caused by the prisoner himself. The cell is on a level with the ground at the front. The debtors' cell is one floor above, on a level with the ground to the rear. The latter is not occupied, is somewhat larger, and is furnished with a bedstead. In Amero's cell the only furniture is a mattress on the floor. Amero's only companion is a dejected-looking incendiary in a cell opposite. Roger was sitting on the deep stone window-sill. He was dressed in a brown vest and trousers, with gray flannel shirt and stockings. He was looking out at the meagre view of a cloud and tree tops, visible over the high, white-washed fence. He looked well and smiled pleasantly, and glanced quickly from one to the other of his visitors.

"I have come to take you to the United States for trial," said Detective Wiggin.

"Well, I am here, I suppose," replied Amero.

He smiled often, and two or three times almost cried as the events of the past month were detailed. The officer offered to investigate the facts

TO SHOW AN ALIBI,

if the prisoner would tell the truth. Amero replied, "I can't tell more than I have. I have told the truth."

In reply to questions, he related the story of his alleged visit to Gloucester, already published. "For three or four weeks I didn't know anybody or anything," and, turning to Chief Constable Daley, he said: "You said your name was Daley when I came home, but I did not know you, I remember you now. I saw you at a horse race some time ago. I was in Gloucester all that time. If you will take me back, I will show you where I stopped.

"How are you feeling now?" asked Detective Wiggin.

"Oh, all right now." He was asked where he stopped in Gloucester, and said: "Tuesday night March 13, Ready and Jeremiah took me with them to sleep. They took me to a place where a lot of beef was hanging up, and I slept on the floor. I don't know where they slept." He repeated the story of being locked in a barn for several days. At this moment some one picked up a boot. "Those are the boots I wore from the time I left Johnson's till I came home home," he said. He nearly cried when attention was called to the boots, but was smiling when he finished the remark. Attention was then called to the trousers on the window sill. "Those pants were bought last winter at Waltham. On Tuesday, March 13, I bought the pants and overcoat in Boston; I can't tell the place, but can go back to it. Eli Thebane was with me. I don't remember what I paid, but I think it was $3 for the overcoat and $3 for the pants. This was between 11 and 12 o'clock in the forenoon. I gave them to my father. He is shorter than I, and mother cut them off at the bottom." The prisoner told the same story of his movements on the trains from Gloucester home, but denied buying a ticket in Portland. "Did you not buy a ticket for Augusta at the Boston & Maine transfer station near Portland?" asked Mr. Wiggin.

"No, sir."

"You had a ticket from the Boston & Maine transfer station in your pocket. Where did you get it?"

The prisoner seemed confused, but gave no satisfactory answer. He did not deny having a ticket.

"How many times have you stopped over night in Boston?"

"Only once—that at Mrs. McCarty's, near the Old Colony depot. The first summer I was there in April, 1880, three year's ago. I used to go on a vessel, and sleep on board. I did not go out evenings for fear of getting lost. I went out with Eli Thebane, but he did not know the streets any better than I." Recurring he said he staid in a barn after Thursday night. Before that he was on the street. He saw Ready and George Mabarn Sunday afternoon. George offered him a bottle of rum, and he drank a little to please him. He was not in the habit of drinking much.

TO HIS STAY IN GLOUCESTER,

"Did you buy a drink in Boston when there?"

"No, sir." And he added that he bought a glass of lager opposite the Old Colony depot June 17 last, when going to Fall River.

"Don't you remember drinking a glass of cider with a man in a saloon, and he drinking whiskey?"

He thought for some time, and then said: "I think I did, when I first went to Boston, three years ago this spring."

Being questioned regarding Mrs. McCarty, he said he slept in an upper room.

"Did you sleep alone?"

"No, sir; with a Frenchman from Frenchtown. Next day I asked a policeman where I could find work. He said there was an employment office 15 School street, room 3, I think. Geo. Fitts of Hopkinton hired me next day."

"Why did you stay in the attic several days after going home?"

"I did not."

"But what were you afraid of?"

"I don't know what I was afraid of. I was afraid of officers, because George said they would take me."

"Had you any trouble with Mrs. Johnson's family or with her?"

"No, sir."

... ened with consumption, and I took different kinds of medicine."

"Why did you hide in the woods three or four days?"

"I did not work, and so was hunting with my father and stayed out all one night."

"When did you first hear of the Carlton murder?"

"Two weeks after getting home. Henry Amero told me of it."

"Why did you tell Everets on the cars your name was Blinn?"

"I don't know what I told Everett my name was."

When asked why he said he paid $10 to get to the depot in Portland, he replied that it was

ON ACCOUNT OF HIS FATHER'S SICKNESS.

His mother had written to him, and when he left Boston he intended to go back in a few days to work on Johnson's farm."

"Have you dismissed Copp as counsel?"

"No, sir. Mr. Savary did. The judge asked if I had signed away my property yet, and I said no. The judge got me to give a deed of said property to go to mother if I die."

"Did you read the deed?"

"No, sir. I wish I had. The judge would not tell me what it was. Doggad came and asked if I wanted to see George Amero; I said yes. He asked me to give him a mortgage on the farm, and he would furnish the money to get him."

"Have you sent for George and Ready?"

"Yes, sir. The judge said I would be here a month yet, and if they would come to bring them."

"Did you engage Lawyer Owen?"

"No, sir; the judge sent him here, but I didn't talk. Owen said something and I didn't answer."

Amero talked with perfect freedom, and seemed to regret the departure of the visitors. He asked them to call again this afternoon. There is considerable contrast with his manner at the trial. The stammering alluded to by Judge Savary is not apparent. Detective Wiggin has recovered the trousers he bought in Boston on March 13, also his pocketbook. The trousers Everett identifies as worn by Amero on the train. Mrs. Amero washed the trousers, and explained why she did so by saying that the clothes were dusty and needed washing. They are dark, blue-black, mixed clothes, and the knees is repaired. No official notice has yet been received by counsel for the United States that a habeas corpus has been applied for, and it is not known when the hearing on it will take place.

The following despatch was received from the deputy minister of justice at Ottawa, in reply to an inquiry as to whether a warrant for extradition has been issued:

Ottawa, May 31, 1883.

To E. D. Wiggin, Digby, N. S.: The warrant for the extradition of Roger Amero has not been issued. The fifteen days expire to-day. I am informed that the prisoner has applied for a habeas corpus. Therefore the warrant cannot be issued except in due course of law.

(Signed) GEORGE W. BURBIDGE.

The service of a notice of the hearing on the habeas of counsel for the United States is momentarily expected.

Union Theological Seminary, New York, has property worth $1,730,000, which is an increase of nearly a million dollars as compared with what it possessed ten years ago. Liberal donations of wealthy friends and the rise in certain pieces of real estate have united to bring about this prosperous state of affairs.

In recording the death of Mrs. Betsey Lee Sherman, at the age of eighty-two years, the St. Alban's Messenger says she had a distinct recollection of President Arthur's father, as he used to come, leading his little son Chester by the hand, on Sundays, and preach in the Fairfield (Vt.) schoolhouse, where she first taught school.

Joseph Boyce Thompson and William Alfred Thompson, married Miss Ida Maud McCausland and Miss Clara Louise McCausland, sisters, in the Carlton street Primitive Methodist Church, Toronto, Canada, on Tuesday morning. There were six bridesmaids, three of whom were sisters of the brides.

German newspapers report that the Shah of Persia has become a raving maniac, and the question of his successor is being seriously discussed. His oldest son, Prince Seth, is an able and popular man, but is disbarred from the succession by the fact that he is the son of a peasant woman. The legitimate heir, who is now Minister of War and Governor of Teheran, is, on the contrary, incapable and unpopular, so that in case of a conflict of claims the public would probably espouse the cause of the eldest son in spite of the flaw in his title.

A London telegram says the Duke of Albany recently received an urgent request from Canada to consent to be the successor of the Marquis of Lorne as Governor General of the Dominion. The Duke, after studying the affairs of Canada, wrote to Mr. Gladstone on the subject. The Prime Minister replied that the Duke was too young for such an important position, and also that he lacked experience in governmental work. The physicians of the Duke of Albany were of the opinion that his health would permit of his acceptance of the Post.

Mr. James Hopper, of Edwardsburg, Ont., has a year-old bear which, on the 6th of last December, retired to his quarters in the shed, and, much to the surprise of the owner, refused to be coaxed out again, even by savory dishes. Weeks and months passed, until people began to look forward to the 17th of March, when all well-regulated bears are supposed to come forth and look for their shadows. But he came not forth, and it was not until the 28th of the month that he condescended to poke his brown nose out and partake of a little milk, and not until the 9th of April that he may be said to have partaken of a square meal. His long fast does not seem to have disagreed with him, as he looks just as well as ever.

Prof. W. K. Brooks of the Johns Hopkins University, at Baltimore, is making some interesting experiments at Hampton in the propagation of the oyster, in which he has been very successful. From his observations it appears that the oyster passes through three stages before arriving at perfection. The first is the trochosphere, a soft body without shell—a round lump of protoplasmic cells with a tuft of hairs at one end of the dot. During this time the oyster swims on the surface of the water. The second stage is called the beliger. It then has a shell and well-developed digestive organs, and the little tuft of hair is connected with a well defined part, the velum. The beliger is a swimming animal like the trochosphere but instead of swimming on the surface sinks to the bottom. The third is the oyster stage, when the velum disappears and the animal loses the power of locomotion.

The form of salution that is used between friends and acquaintences varies with the individual who employes it. In some cases it is intelligible and allows a prompt and graceful reply, but in others it confuses the mind, and is so couched that the appropriate answer does not always readily suggest itself. When, for instance, an acquaintance meets one and asks, "How do you do?" there is evidently at hand a wide range of responses, from the refined "Very well, I thank you," to the coarser but not less expression, "Bully?" or "Bang up?" When the inquiry is "How goes it?" every man who knows anything about propriety in casual intercourse replies, "So, so"—a response vague in its form but full of possibilities and suggestiveness. No man, however, has yet devised a fitting response to him who asks, "What's the good word?" and many otherwise alert and brilliant minds have been reduced to the semblance of temporary idiocy by hearing the inquiry made. We commend to the attention of those who are thus accosted by their acquaintances the reply which a certain man invariably makes upon such an occasion. "What's the good word?" says this gentleman. "Well, 'Heaven' is a good word, and so is 'Paradise' and 'hydrocarbon' and 'peristyle.' 'Typographical' also has a pleasing sound, and so has 'genealogy,' while 'obsolescent' seems to some an agreeable combination of consonants and vowels"—and thus saying he skips away leaving his interlocutor for once at the uncomfortable end of the colloquy.

The Press says, Freeman Crockett is a single man, aged forty-five years, who resides with his father's family in Cape Elizabeth. A neighbor was going along the road near his house about 11:30 P. M., when he saw a white object lying close by the roadside and at the same time heard what sounded like low growling. Frightened to death, the neighbor, whose name is given as Alpheus Phinney, rushed to Mr. Rundlett's house, close at hand, and induced young Fred Rundlett, whom he awoke out of a sound sleep, to take his double-barrel shot gun and go out with him to the spot. Upon approach the young man called out, "Man, devil or bear answer, or I fire." As no response was made to the defiant appeal young Rundlett fired, when, to his and Phinney's horror, the cries of a man showed they had shot their neighbor, Freeman Crockett, and the supposed bear's growls were nothing but a man's snores, and the presumed bear's white face—if bear's have white faces—was the glistening bald head of Crockett. Luckily Crockett had on a very thick overcoat and a bran new suit of clothes under his left arm. These clothes received the most of the shot, while a few entered his body. The physicians consider Crockett seriously but not dangerously wounded, although he may lose the sight of one eye.

Foster, Esq., of Amherst, twins, aged about 11 years, while at play with a can of powder in the shop, scattering it along on the bench and touching it off with a match, dropped the can upon the blaze which caused it to explode. Their hair, eyebrows, checks and clothes were completely singed, and Mamie was badly burned.

Much talk is occasioned by the peculiar provisions of a will made by one of Gardiner's late citizens. By it $2,000 is left as a fund for the Methodist church, provided that society forego the sweets of any more church sociables, otherwise the money will be used as a fund to make more comfortable the inmates of the poorhouse, furnishing them with anything needed in case of sickness.

Mr. Charles Burleigh, inventor of the Burleigh rock drill died at his residence in Fitchburg, Monday evening. He had Bright's disease for some time, but rode out Monday forenoon. His age was 58 years, and he leaves a widow and three sons. Mr. Burleigh was born in Waterville, Aug. 30, 1824.

The Journal says a man well known in Augusta, a harness-maker, has been detected in stealing a harness and $200 worth of other articles from the firm who employed him. The firm agreed not to prosecute the thief if he would settle for the stolen property, which he did and has now left the city.

The Kennebec County Medical Association held its annual meeting at Hotel North, Augusta, on Thursday. A very interesting paper was read by Dr. F. M. Putnam, of Gardiner, subject, "Electricity and Medicine." The following officers were elected: President, Dr. B. T. Sanborn; Vice President, Dr. J. M. Eveleth; Secretary and Treasurer, J. Q. A. Hawes.

Lincoln.

The Opinion states a very serious shooting affair took place at North Waldoboro, Saturday night, resulting in serious wounds to one young man, who narrowly escaped being killed. Dr. Judson Alden, Henry C. Millay and Cyrus R. Packard were riding past the house of Gilmore Tyler, when some person fired at them, hitting Dr. Alden. He was badly wounded in the arm near the elbow and in the thigh. As many as seventeen shot struck him, only five of which have been extracted. They penetrated to a depth of from three to six inches. The wounds bled profusely and are very painful. Unless there should be some unexpected unfavorable turn of the case, there is no danger of a fatal result, but recovery will be slow, and it is not probable that Dr. Alden will ever recover the use of his arm. The elbow is badly injured and will be permanently stiffened.

The work of laying the rails on the Kennebunk & Kennebunkport railroad is finished, and the last rail was laid about 11 o'clock A. M. last Wednesday, so there is now a continuous line from Kennebunkport to Kennebunk. The road will be ballasted in a few days, and trains will be running by June 18th.

TUESDAY, JUNE 5 1883

The number of terrible fatalities thus far in 1883 are unprecedented in the events of a like time in any other year of the United States

The Inter Ocean dares the Democracy to insert the old free-trade plank in the platform. Long before the meeting of the National Convention every free-trader will have shakes that even free quinine in free whiskey won't cure.

It is fortunate that the great iron strike at Pittsburg has been averted by an amicable adjustment of prices between the manufacturers and the men. The suspension of work at the Chicago iron mills will probably be brief now that the Pittsburg trouble is averted

Mr Gould, like every poor man, can afford the luxury of joking. A newspaper reporter went to him the other day and asked if the report was true that he had given Tiffany a $300 000 contract to decorate the interior of his residence, to which Mr Gould replied that the amount was incorrectly stated. "It should have been $3,000 000," he said. Then the reporter asked him as to the truth of some absurd rumors about what he was going to take with him in his yacht cruise around the world. "I have decided," replied the great monopolist, "to take nothing with me but the Brooklyn bridge."

An Ohio railroad company is experimenting with a new system of counting time and has its schedules read from 1 to 24 o clock. In this way 2 P M is 14, and 10 P M 22 o clock. The manager of the road believes that a great deal of confusion and many accidents have resulted from mistaking A M for P M on the running cards and vice versa and is determined to give the larger circle a fair trial. It may work well within the offices of the railway company among those who are accustomed to it but the passenger will experience a novel bewilderment when he is informed that the train will leave 59 minutes after 23

The annual report of the Massachusetts Bureau of Statistics of Labor just published presents tables of the wages paid by the various industries of Massachusetts. The actual average of annual wages received by the employes—men women and children—is $308 for 290 days' work or an average of $1 23 per day. The average pay of men employed is $1 60 per day. In manufacturing establishments the average annual pay to men women and children is slightly over $1 24 per day. The average pay of men is $1 60 per day. The net profit of manufacturing industries in Massachusetts during the past year has been only about 6 per cent against about 13 per cent in the flush time which preceded the hard times of 1876 8. Wages are 4½ per cent less than in flush times and the profits of employers 7 per cent less.

The people of New York rushed into the arms of the Democracy last fall with all possible ardor. The majority for the almost unknown Cleveland, pitted though though he was against Judge Folger was nearly 200,000. Evidently a political cyclone swept the State. Some of the results of turning the State Government over to the Democratic party have been attained already, and one at least deserves to be specially noted. The total taxation of the State in 1882 was $6 820 022 29, in 1883, $9 046 968 07. Here we have an increase in one year of $2 226 945 78. Last year the levy was 2 45 mills on the valuation this year 3 25 mills. Not a county escapes increase. Erie (Buffalo) which was so delighted with the election returns, has to pay about $70 000 for the luxury of furnishing the State with a Governor.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Senator Sherman in a speech at Mansfield Ohio outlined clearly but briefly two of the main issues on which the Republicans of that State will go into the canvass this fall. These are the tariff and the Scott liquor law. There is no uncertain sound in what Mr Sherman claims on these points. The Republicans, he states are in favor of taxes on imported goods which shall furnish revenue to the Government, but in levying them care should be taken to foster and build up manufactures of all kinds so that workingmen may have fair wages for a fair day's labor. On the Scott law he is equally clear, declaring the statute to be just and fair in taxing liquor. He thinks it will restrain indiscriminate traffic in spirits and yield a fruitful revenue. To avoid meeting such plain issues so plainly put it will certainly require artful dodging on the part of the Democrats.

One of the curious and ingenious contrivances shown at the Japanese Fishery Exhibition which has just been held at Uyeno, was a set of whale nets and harpoons with explanatory pictures. When whales appear off the coast large boats containing from twenty to thirty men put off to attack them, equipped with strong grass nets about ten yards long, with meshes about a yard square. Eight or ten of these nets are slightly attached, end to end, and when a whale is reached they are launched in front of and around him. At the first dart he becomes entangled and dashes away, one of the ten-yard lengths of net breaking off and clinging round him. His embarrassment soon brings him again to the surface, when other nets are thrown, until at last he becomes so hampered with them, and so harried and frightened, as to be an easy mark for spears and harpoons.

A simple little device at the National Exposition of Railway Appliances in Chicago showed to what extent inventive genius can aid in the preservation of our forests. The invention is a spike for holding the rail to the ties. All the spikes that have been used heretofore have broken the grain of the wood when they were driven thus permitting the water to soak in around them, at an expense, in a short time, of the ties. Not only this, but after being in use for a time the ordinary spike becomes loose, and danger to a train follows. The spike in question has a chisel point that cuts the way for the body of the spike that follows. A tight and close grip of the wood is thus obtained. The consequence is that a tie into which this spike is driven ought certainly to be twice as durable, at least, as it is at present. To take into account the immense amount of timber that is manufactured into ties, it is readily seen that the saving would be of great importance.

TWO VESSELS BOUND NORTH.

[N. Y. Tribune.]

The Washington authorities have complied with the Tribune's suggestion that two vessels in place of one should be sent to Smith Sound this summer to the relief of Lieutenant Greely. General Hazen, after personally examining the steam whaler Proteus, has chartered her at St Johns to convey the relief party to Lyttleton Island, and if the condition of the ice be favorable, to make the run to Lady Franklin Bay. At the same time the Navy Department has ordered the Yantic to accompany the relief expedition. The Proteus is an excellent ship so far as model and general seaworthiness go, having carried the colonists to their destination two years ago, and being commanded by Captain Pike, one of the most experienced officers in the whaling service. Her boilers are old and need replacing, but in all other respects she is as good a vessel as could have been selected for this dangerous errand.

The Yantic was originally built during the war, but has been reconstructed once or twice, and although not especially adapted for Arctic navigation, will serve the purpose as well as any other vessel in the Navy. She is as staunch and seaworthy as the Alliance, which withstood the pressure of the ice two years ago in the waters of Spitzbergen. She will not be called upon to traverse the upper waters of Smith Sound, but only to accompany the Proteus as far as Lyttleton Island whence she can return before October.

The advantage of having two ships instead of one is obvious. If one should be crushed in the ice or disabled in any respect, the other can take her place. The Yantic anchoring in Life Boat Cove while the Proteus forges ahead, will be a base of operations to which Lieutenant Darlington's men can retreat if they meet with any accident. The presence of the second vessel will be an assurance that the winter colony will be established in the spot where Lieutenant Greely and his men will expect to find it, if they are not reached by open water and are compelled to retreat 200 miles over the ice. The Yantic may not have any serious work before her but those who are responsible for the rescue of the colonists will now have the consciousness that they have not neglected any reasonable precautions.

As both vessels will have to sail as early as the 1st of July there will be little time for special preparations for the voyages. The Yantic cannot be thoroughly overhauled but she can be materially strengthened. The Proteus's model will favor her, if she be nipped in the ice, and her crew will consist of hardy men who are thoroughly acquainted with Arctic navigation. We trust that no pains will be spared to have the relief party composed of picked men fitted by powers of physical endurance and temperate habits for the important work required of them. As for the general equipment of the expedition and the choice of material and supplies we are confident that so experienced and energetic an officer as Gen Hazen will leave nothing to be desired.

The will of Amasa Stone, of Cleveland, was made public on Saturday. Mr Stone sets apart for his wife the Euclid avenue homestead and $500,000 from which she shall receive $25,000 annually during her life. At her death the property goes to Mr Stone's daughters and their husbands. He bequeaths to his daughters Mrs John Hay and Mrs Samuel Mather, $600 000 each, and to their husbands $100,000 each, to his sister Mrs. Burgess to Liberty and Andrew B Stone his brothers, and to his wife's sister, Wilthea M Moore, $7 000 each, to his nephew, A G Stone, $10 000, to eighteen nephews and nieces $5000 each, to Mrs Rebecca Blood and her husband, $12 000, to his coachman and gardener, a house and lot each, to Adelbert College, "if the estate reaches $3 000 000," $100 000, to the Home for Aged Women, $10 000, to the Children's Aid Society, $10 000. The residue of the estate goes to his daughters, their husbands and their heirs, share and share alike. It is stipulated that no inventory or appraisal of the estate be made or any property sold at public sale.

National Educational Assembly, which is to meet at Ocean Grove, N J, in August, has planned some discussions that should prove interesting to the country at large, the topics relating to matters of vital social and political importance. The subject of "National Aid to Common Schools" will be considered by Judge Tourgee, Senator Blair, of New Hampshire and others. "The Negro in America" will have papers from Frederick Douglass, Bishop H. W. Warren, of Atlanta, and Dr Ward editor of the Independent. Bishop Tuttle of Utah, Bishop Wiley and others will give views respecting "The Mormon Question," while "The Indian Question" will receive the attention of a number of qualified instructors including General Clinton B Fisk, Bishop Whipple, and Captain Pratt. The purpose of these annual assemblies is to bring together upon the same platform prominent representatives of popular education, irrespective of section, church, or political party, to awaken and direct public sentiment in favor of enlarged National, State, and Church efforts for the education and elevation of the illiterate masses of the country. This broad aim gives it universal interest, and the eminent and able members of this association of thinkers enforce respectful attention to their views. Something may be learned from their matured opinions that will be of service to the government in its efforts to treat three very troublesome problems.

Mr Hayden, late Chief Engineer of the Senate tells a curious story of the last days of Charles Sumner, which has probably never appeared in print. Mr Hayden, as Chief Engineer of the Senate, had a seat in the Senate Chamber, directly at the right of the Vice President. From the place where he sat he had the seat which was occupied by Charles Sumner in full view. Mr. Hayden occupied his seat in the Senate continuously for the last two hours of the last day which Mr. Sumner spent in the chamber, and he tells this interesting story.

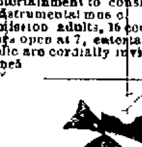

"I shall never forget," says Mr. Hayden, "the last time that Mr. Sumner was in the Senate. I was sitting in my usual place when I saw Mr. Sumner rise, take his hat and cane both in his right hand, as he was often accustomed to do, and start to leave the chamber. As he rose from his seat he put his left hand quickly to his left breast as if in pain, and seemed to press it hard. Then he stood, I should say, for a full minute, casting his eyes around the entire range of the galleries twice, as if looking for a familiar face. He, then, standing there deliberately surveyed the whole Senate, and then started for the east door. As he started, he dropped his left hand from his left breast. As he reached the east door he once more put his left hand to his breast with a quicker motion and inclined his body slightly to the right. Once more he turned, and I saw the wonderful expression upon his face now. It turned first pale, deadly pale, then became a pearly gray. I should never have known the face was that of Mr. Sumner. There was upon it an expression of pain, but a deeper expression of agonizing sorrow. He stood a few seconds in this position, surveyed once more the whole Senate floor, straightened himself a little from his partly inclining position toward the right, and darted through the eastern folding doors as if shot from a cannon. He never entered the Senate chamber again. In two days he was dead. I could not account for Mr. Sumner's strange conduct and that terrible expression on his face. It haunted me. The next day I learned that he was sick, and the next that he was dead, and it occurred to me in a moment that possibly Mr Sumner, as he stood there with his hand upon his breast and surveyed the Senate chamber, might have had a presentiment that that look was the last which he was ever to give upon that body, and it was."—Wash Cor Boston Journal.

FROM WASHINGTON.

General News.

Conference with Indians.

WASHINGTON, June 4. White Wolf, Big Bow and Sun Boy, representing the Comanche and Kiowa Indians, of Indian Territory, arrived here to-day to confer with the Secretary of the Interior respecting their reservation. The Indians are accompanied by Col. P. B Hunt, their agent, and S. T. Woodward their interpreter. Chief Bushy Head, of the Cherokee nation, arrives here to-morrow to confer with Secretary Teller, relative to the $300,000 appropriated by Congress to pay for lands ceded to the Government.

Under the treaty of 1866, with the Cherokees, the Department holds that a portion of the money appropriated should be paid to the Shawnee and Delaware Indians; that freedmen (colored people living among the Indians) are also entitled to their share. The Cherokees, however, contend that they have exclusive right to determine how the money shall be divided. Bushy Head comes to Washington with a view of settling the matter.

The Tobacco Rebate.

Thirteen rebate schedules, containing 1351 claims and aggregating $162,000, have been received at the Treasury Department to date. As there are 126 districts, each of which will have at least two schedules, one for dealers and one for manufacturers, there will be 251 schedules in all. Those received so far show an average of $109 to each claimant, which, if followed out in all that are yet to come, will make the total rebate claim amount to $2,500,000 More than half of this, however, will be manufacturers' claims, which are to be paid in stamps, leaving about $1 000,000 in dealers' claims, for the payment of which Congress will be asked to provide.

Unable to Compromise

MILWAUKEE, June 4. Superintendent Parker, of the North Chicago rolling mill, told a committee of workingmen at Bay View yesterday that the company would sign the scale if the demand for bi-weekly payments was withdrawn. A Fine State of Affairs in Texas.

AUSTIN, Tex, June 4 The grand jury have indicated forty to fifty members of the Legislature for gambling Quite a number of these have left money with counsel to plead guilty and pay a minimum fine rather than go to trial in the Court. Another despatch says some one entered the County Clerk's office, Saturday night, and stole all the indictments returned by the grand jury for violations of the gambling law, including those against members of the Legislature. There is no clue to the theft, but sporting circles are greatly elated.

THE BRIDGE DISASTER.

An Inquest in Progress.

NEW YORK, June 4 An inquest was begun to-day in the cases of the twelve victims of the recent panic on the Brooklyn Bridge. C. C. Martin, Superintendent of the Bridge, was the first witness. He testified that at the time of the disaster 22 special police were on the bridge. A railing has been put up at the stairway since the accident, but the witness said this precaution would not remedy matters there in case of another panic. An inclined plane has been suggested in the place of a stairway, but this also would not afford any relief, but on the contrary would be dangerous in slippery weather The present stairway was the best arrangement that could be made for the safety of the passenger.

James S. Stranahan, of Brooklyn, a member of the Board of Bridge Trustees, thought the bridge in its present condition was as safe as it could possibly be made, and on days when there was an unusual pressure of travel, one of the wagon roads would be thrown open to the public. The opening of the railroad, however, would without doubt, relieve the difficulty and the promenade would be used principally by sight seers. As a temporary relief, however, if it should seem best, additional walks for foot passengers could be constructed each side of the carriage ways This would be preferable to flooring over the railway as the weight in the latter case would be cast on the inner cables, which now bear the greatest strain.

INTERESTING INCIDENT. An interesting incident took place at Norway during the memorial address of Gov. Robie. He alluded to the Norway Light Infantry as one of the earliest, if not the first company in Maine to respond to the call of the President for 75,000 volunteers. This company was under the command of Capt. Geo. L. Beal, and was the nucleus which afterward developed officers of the greatest valor. This company furnished the United States during the war with 326 men, also 47 commissioned officers, which includes 1 Major General, 1 Brigadier General, 4 Colonels, 9 Captains and 28 Lieutenants. Gov. Robie was paymaster of this company, and presented to the Norway Light Infantry the muster out and pay roll of the original company 9 1st Maine regiment, who had so much distinguished themselves during the war, as an interesting souvenir. ... A DESIRABLE OFFER. Mr. Frank W. Cram, of this city, has been offered the Superintendency of the New Brunswick Railway at a liberal salary. With the recent additions to this railway system the New Brunswick Railway now has under its direct management 422 miles and this mileage promises to be soon increased by leasing the Fredericton Branch and the construction of the line from the northern terminus at Edmundston to the St. Lawrence River. Mr. Cram is possessed of very superior qualifications for the management of the interests of a large railroad corporation and, should he accept, the New Brunswick Railway Company would be most fortunate. Mr. Cram has the matter under advisement and has not yet rendered his decision. He is at present at Bar Harbor superintending the construction of the Green Mountain Railway and will probably remain there during the present week.

PERSONAL The Providence Press says "Mr A D Harlow, the accomplished musician, will soon remove from Pawtucket to accept the position of leader of the Elgin, Ill , military band. For five years he was at the head of the Pawtucket Band. In 1861, on the breaking out of the rebellion, he enlisted in the Second Bangor, Me., regiment, for three months, and was leader of the regimental band that accompanied this regiment to the front. The regiment re-enlisted for two years, and he remained with it with the rank of lieutenant until regimental bands were mustered out of service He served 14 months. He then returned to Bangor and led the Bangor Band 15 years, and until he came to this town. Mr. Harlow's departure will be regretted by all music-loving citizens "

ANOTHER RAILROAD WONDER Some years ago the WHIG chronicled the wonderful feat of Thomas Starrett, the deaf and dumb brakeman on the Maine Central freight, and at intervals since that time the item has appeared in exchanges in different parts of the States. The Lewiston Journal adds the following. A Journal reporter was introduced, a few days since, to another employee of the road, who labors under greater disadvantages than Starrett in the discharge of work "This is Jos. Rouceaux," said an employee on the road. He has a compact and robust form Mr. Starrett though deaf and dumb can read and write, but Rouceaux is deaf and dumb and can neither read or write. Rouceaux has been on the construction train of the Maine Central since '76 or '77. He worked for a number of years as a laborer on the road, whence, attracting attention by his ready perception, he was promoted to his present place as brakeman on the train. He is considered one of the most careful, watchful and efficient brakemen on the road. The conductor gives him all his orders by signs. "He don't know," says the conductor, "that I want a blank and envelope from the rack in the saloon car " The conductor made a sign and the brakeman brought him the exact things desired. "Where are we going?" asked the conductor as he pointed at the engine and made the customary sign. Rouceaux crooked his forefinger along an imaginary tract. "It's Farmington he means, and that's where the train is going," was explained He has a sign for every town and hamlet, for every official and the laborer on the road. The conductor of the train is square-shouldered and Rouceaux taps his own shoulders when he refers to him. He pulls his moustach for roadmaster Wagg, and shakes his head for a popular bald headed official on the line. His eyes seems to be thoroughly open for details. He seems to know where the train is to go, who to stop and what is to be done. It is customary to expect as much from him as from any of the brakemen. Rouceaux is a French Canadian and about thirty years of age."

Around the World in 80 Days.

Of the company which appears in the Opera House the last of the week the Argus says.

"Around the World in Eighty Days" was produced at Portland Theatre Monday night with some of the handsomest scenery that has been seen there. The company is an excellent one, and the Hungarian ballet, though small, is composed of graceful dancers. Wm. Morris is the best Phileas Fogg ever seen here and Mr. Lytell as jolly as ever as Passepartout. The explosion and other scenes were realistic.

MRS. LANGTRY.

The "Jersey Lily" as "Galatea."

A large and very brilliant audience assembled at the Opera House last evening to welcome Mrs. Langtry upon her first and only appearance in Maine. The play was W. S. Gilbert's somewhat hackneyed "Pygmalion and Galatea," which affords the leading role comparatively little scope for the display of histrionic talent but in its classic associations and artistic posing is exceptionally adapted to the exhibition of female loveliness of face and figure. As the curtains were drawn aside in the first act revealing "Galatea" in statuesque relief against a maroon background, a hum of admiration deepened into warm applause, and the audience required a second look at Pygmalion's masterpiece. In the pedestal scene Mrs. Langtry was draped with an absolute modesty that added the charm of innocence to graceful attitude and outline, and throughout the play the severe simplicity of the marble white was modified only in the change from the sculptured locks of the statue to the glossy brown hair of the living woman

Of the relative degree of Mrs. Langtry's beauty opinions in Bangor will vary as widely as in other places where she has appeared. That she is a very comely woman will hardly be denied by any, and we heard many of her own sex last evening enthusiastically praising her charms of face and form. Undoubtedly, Mrs. Langtry, placed among a hundred attractive women of good society anywhere in this country or in England, would be noticed and admired, but it is by no means certain that she would frequently prove the handsomest of the number, and still less so that she would be readily selected as a beauty of international fame.

However, she was very winsome and graceful as "Galatea" last evening, and proved a much better actress than many had been led by metropolitan criticism to suppose. It is not very easy to determine just how a vivified statue should act, but Mrs. Langtry was quiet, earnest and graceful, and with the exception of a slight tendency at times to drawl, rendered her lines with good elocution and pleasant effect. The lady has evidently devoted herself successfully to improving as an actress and she has reason to be greatly encouraged by the progress she has made in the short time she has been on the stage.

The support given her was good. Mr Cooper as "Pigmalion" was easy and natural in manner, and evinced a clear conception of the character he assumed. Miss Tracy as "Cynisca " the wife of Pygmalion, rendered her part with excellent ability, and especially in the scene where she invoked the penalty upon her husband, manifested unusual dramatic power Mr. McDonald as "Chrysos" was grotesque in appearance and with Mrs. Jamison as "Daphne," effectively furnished the comedy element of the play. Miss Lascelles as "Myrine" and Mr. Dalton as "Leucippe" performed their parts acceptably, and the cast as a whole was satisfactory.

Mrs Langtry will go from here to St. John and thence to Halifax.

Our people are pleased to have seen and heard her on the stage, and although she is not a Siddons or a Neilson, she will be remembered as a beautiful woman who admirably realized the Grecian sculptor's ideal.

The brilliant playing of Andrews' Orchestra formed an attractive part of the entertainment and was greatly admired.

Rifle Practice

Col E C Farrington, Inspector of rifle practice, has issued the following circular to the military companies.

In order to reorganize the State rifle team you will select from the marksmen of you company, not more than six men who will practice, as follows:

First, you will as soon as the selection is made, appoint, two days prior to the 19th day of June, at which time, (unless too rainy for practice) you will have each man fire, according to the rules of rifle practice, ten rounds each day at both 200 and 500 yards. Returns of the practice to be made at once, giving the result of each shot as made, the condition of the weather, direction,—right or left—and force of the wind as allowed by points on the wind gauge, and such other explanations as you deem proper. Two sighting shots only will be allowed each man at each distance. In the selection of men you will have regard to previous record. Do not select anyone, who would not desire to go to Creedmore, if selected.

From the list returned by the various commands, twenty men will be selected, who will be brought together at some future date for a final competition, at 200, 500 and 600 yards, the result of which will determine who are to compose the State team.

MAINE MEN.

From Bath, Me , we have received, under date of May 15, 1883, the following statement of GEO. W HARRISON, the popular proprietor of "The Restaurant": "A few years since I was troubled so severely with kidney and bladder affection that there was brick-dust deposits in my urine, and continual desire to urinate, with severe, darting, sharp pains through my bladder and side, and again dull heavy pressure, very tedious to endure. I consulted one of our resident physicians, but I received no benefit from the treatment, and fearing that my symptoms indicated 'Bright's Disease,' the most dreadful of all diseases, I made up my mind that I must obtain relief speedily or I would be past cure. I consulted my Druggist, Mr. Webber, and after ascertaining my symptoms, he recomended the use of Hunt's Remedy, as he knew of many successful cures effected by that medicine in similar cases here in Bath. I purchased a bottle, and before I had used the first bottle I found I had received a great benefit, as I suffered less pain, my water became more natural, and I began to improve so much that the second bottle effected a complete cure, and my thanks are due to Hunt's Remedy for restored health, and I cheerfully recommend this most valuable and reliable medicine to my friends, as I consider it a duty as well as a pleasure to do so."

"Being well acquainted with Mr. George W Harrison at the time of his sickness, referred to in the foregoing testimonial, I can certify to the correctness of the statement made by him.

BLACKSMITHS' TROUBLES

Having had occasion to use a remedy for kidney trouble, I noticed an advertisement in one of the papers of the remarkable cures that Hunt's Remedy had made all over the country. I purchased a bottle at one of our druggists here in Manchester, and after using it for a short time found that it was helping me wonderfully and one bottle has cured me completely—have no indigestion and am hearty and healthy for one of my years (65), and can truly say that Hunt's Remedy is a medicine that has real merit and I do not hesitate to recommend it to the public in general.

A Connecticut journal furnishes the following toothsome bit of literary diet. It may appear "fishy" at first glance, but it isn't. "A paper called The Idiot has appeared in Paris, France. No doubt it is intended for those 'queer fish' that are supposed to be in Seine ' Anybody in America could be properly called insane, or an idiot, if he should declare Catarrh to be incurable People used to think so The newspapers now contain data, names, facts and dates of cures of this loathsome malady Everybody has come to know that Ely's Cream Balm cures Catarrh, and it is the only preparation that will do it. "Ely's Cream Balm has cured me of Catarrh of several years' standing," writes Mr. Frank C Ogden, of Elizabeth, N. J. PLANETS IN JUNE

[Providence Press.]

Jupiter is evening star He makes his last appearance for the present in that role. Even before the month closes he will be so near the sun as to be hidden in its rays. Therefore, the most must be made of the evenings in the early part of June, when he will be a bright and beautiful object in the glowing twilight. It will be interesting to watch his departing glory, as night after night his stay above the horizon lessens and he draws closer to the luminary he closely resembles While the other planets hide their diminished heads as they approach the great central orb, Jupiter and Venus dare to shine on the threshold of his sanctuary The two brightest planets are now nearly at the same distance from the sun, Jupiter as evening star on his eastern side, and Venus as morning star on his western side Never has the prince of planets put on a more attractive aspect than the one that has made brilliant the course he is now completing from his last opposition to his approaching conjunction For his path has led through a portion of the heavens studded with the brightest stars that adorn the firmament When more than a year hence he appears under similar conditions, that is, near conjunction, the bright galaxy of stars that have added to the splendor of his court will be below the horizon, and he will reign comparatively alone

The telescopic Jupiter continues to afford interesting material for observation and to give proof of intense activity. The great spot has vanished, but the forms and colors of the great belts are undergoing wonderful transformations Every color of the rainbow finds place in the curious bands and spots that diversify his surface Sometimes the belts are mottled and sometimes they are striped and streaked with delicate tints of rose, purple orange and every shade of gray the variousness of tone and tint being indescribable to those who have not seen this majestic planet in a telescope of large dimensions These changes are indications of the powerful forces at work in the huge orb Though we cannot tell what is going on here, observation is our only means of finding out and long continued observation will doubtless mark progress in the cooling of the giant of the system Jupiter's right ascension is 6h 24m his declination is 23° 21' and his diameter is 32" 6

Jupiter sets on the 1st, at a quarter after 9 o'clock in the evening, on the 30th he sets about a quarter before 8 o'clock

Uranus is evening star. On the 10th, at 1 o'clock in the morning, he is in quadrature with the sun half way between opposition and conjunction on the sun's eastern side The right ascension of Uranus is 11h 21m his declination is 4° 58' and his diameter is 3" 6

Uranus sets on the 1st, at 1 o'clock in the morning, on the 30th he sets about a quarter after 11 o'clock in the evening

Mercury is evening star until the 7th and morning star the rest of the month On the 7th at 11 o'clock in the evening Mercury is in inferior conjunction with the sun He then passes between the earth and the sun as the moon does at new moon As he was at his descending node on the 7th he will pass at inferior conjunction below the sun and give no proof of his passage He will not make a transit until 1891 passing above or below the sun at every inferior conjunction until that time After the 7th he joins the goodly company of morning stars including besides himself, Mars, Venus, Neptune and Saturn Mercury's right ascension is 6h 1m his declination is 21° 52' north, and his diameter is 11" 6

Mercury sets on the 1st at 8 o'clock in the evening on the 30th he rises about a quarter after three o'clock in the morning

Venus is morning star Though she is not first on the list in the order of rising she takes the first rank among the morning stars for the beautiful picture she presents, and for contributing the largest share of incidents to the June planetary record On the 8th at 5 o'clock in the morning she is in conjunction with Neptune, being then ten minutes north The planets will be near each other when they rise about 3 o'clock on the morning of the 8th an hour and a quarter before sunrise Venus will be readily recognized, but Neptune is invisible even in large telescopes The close the conjunction must be seen in the mind's eye when the fair planet that is our nearest neighbor travelling eastward toward the sun hangs side by side with the planet most remote from terrestrial domain travelling westward and receding from the sun Venus having paid her respects to Neptune next encounters Saturn in her course She meets him on the 19th at 7 o'clock in the evening when she passes thirty five minutes north of him The planets are then below the horizon and invisible but on the morning of the 20th, sharp eyed observers may find them Venus being northeast of Saturn and about three and a half degrees south of the sun the point After conjunction, Venus grows fainter and smaller as she approaches the sun and Saturn slowly increases in size and brilliancy as he approaches the earth The right ascension of Venus is 2h 42m her declination is 14° north, and her diameter is 1...

Venus rises on the 1st at one minute after three o'clock in the morning, on the 30th she rises a six minutes after 3 o'clock

Mars is morning star The beginning of the month he is the first of the four planets playing this role to appear above the horizon the order being Mars Venus Neptune Saturn Mars is now taking on form and size, and may be found shining as a small red star in the constellation Aries being more readily recognized as there are no stars of note in his vicinity On the 26th he is overtaken by Neptune on the celestial track at 11 o'clock in the evening The two planets are then in conjunction Mars passing a little more than one degree north The conjunction is invisible as well as the vicinity of the two planets as far as Neptune is concerned on the morning of the 27th However it illustrates a phase of apparent planetary movement Both planets are moving westward and though Mars in reality is nearer and travels faster he is apparently outstripped by Neptune, who passes him on the track and arrives at opposition two months earlier But it must be remembered that we observe the planets from the earth which is a moving observatory and thus movements that are really simple appear complicated and incongruous The earth revolves twice in her orbit while Mars revolves once in his orbit and then it takes her about fifty days more to catch up with him and come into line when Mars completes his synodic revolution and is in opposition In the case of Neptune the earth revolves once in her orbit and only requires two days more to come into line with the slow moving planet Thus the oppositions of Mars take place at intervals of 780 days Those of Neptune occur at intervals of 367 days The right ascension of Mars is 1h 59m, his declination is 11° 14' north, and his diameter is 4" 8

Mars rises on the 1st about a quarter before 3 o'clock in the morning, on the 30th he rises at a quarter before 2 o'clock

Neptune is morning star, and meets Venus on the 8th, the one travelling west and the other east He overtakes Mars on the 26th, both planets travelling in the same direction The conjunctions have been referred to Neptune's right ascension is 3h 9m, his declination is 16° 56' north and his diameter is 2" 5

Neptune rises on the 1st at half-past 3 o'clock in the morning, on the 30th, he rises at half past 1 o'clock.

Saturn is morning star and contributes one ocident to enliven the records of the month, his conjunction with Venus on the 19th, previously described. Saturn's right ascension is 3h 37m, his declination is 18° 37' north, and his diameter is 15" 6.

Saturn rises on the 1st at eight minutes after 4 o'clock in the morning, on the 30th, he rises at about half-past 2 o'clock.

THE MOON.

The June moon fulls on the 20th at forty-seven minutes after 11 o'clock in the morning The slender crescent less than a day old is close to Saturn on the 4th, being two minutes north about 4 o'clock in the morning. Unfortunately for terrestrial observers, the sunlight hides the beautiful phenomenon from mortal view. This conjunction, as well as several that have preceded it, shows how nearly the moon's present path coincides with that of Saturn and how nearly the conjunction is an occultation. Saturn is occulted in his geocentric position, that is as seen from the centre of the earth, nine times during the year, though in no case is the occultation visible in Washington. The conjunction of Saturn and the moon on the 5th of April was seen as an occultation by observers in Illinois and Iowa.

The new moon is near Mercury on the 5th, at her nearest point to Jupiter on the 6th, and near Uranus on the 12th. She pays her respects for the second time to Neptune on the 26th, and to Mars on the 30th, three days after the last quarter, the moon and Mars making an attractive picture on the eastern sky.

HEART DISEASE

Now IS YOUR HEART SOUND?

Many people think themselves sick and look for for kidney or liver troubles or dyspepsia when if the truth were known the real cause is the heart

The renowned Dr Clendinning startles by saying "one-third of my subjects show signs of heart disease"

The heart weighs about nine ounces and yet two and twenty-eight pounds of blood passes through it once in a minute and a half resting not day or night! Surely this subject should have careful attention

Dr Graves a celebrated physician has prepared a specific for all heart troubles and kindred disorders It is known as Dr Graves' Heart Regulator and can be obtained at your druggists $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5 by express Send stamp for Dr Graves' thorough and exhaustive treatise (1)

"It has become so common to write the beginning of an article, in an elegant, interesting manner,

"Then run it into some advertisement that we avoid all such,
